

Detroit
Regional Partnership

Tesia Mamassian

Vice President of Operations

Tesia Mamassian is a Vice President of Operations for the Detroit Regional Partnership. In this role, Mamassian oversees the organization's daily operations, serving as the financial officer, corporate secretary and human resources manager, and ensuring efficiency in operations and vendor management.

Mamassian previously worked as administrative and office services lead for the Boston Consulting Group where she executed day-to-day office operations and coordinated professional services and administrative support across their Detroit consultant base. Prior to that role, she served as center coordinator at the Brookings Institution's Center on the U.S. and Europe and research assistant for the U.S. Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations. Mamassian has a Bachelor of Arts in International Relations from Michigan State University.